

Wealth comes to me in unexpected ways

Wealth comes to me in unexpected ways.

The universe works in mysterious ways, and my bank account is proof of this. I am on the receiving end of a lot of good fortune.

I constantly receive money, job and investment opportunities, and favors from a variety of unexpected sources.

I am blessed.

There are countless money-making opportunities around me. Many of these just seem to fall into my lap. Whether someone pays me back for a loan I have long forgotten, or I receive a discount on an item I need, wealth comes to me in one form or another.

I receive career opportunities from surprising sources. I might receive a promotion, or a friend shows me a listing for a great job that suits me perfectly. I am regularly surprised.

I believe in abundance. I am as deserving of abundance as anyone else in the world. My belief in abundance allows it to become my reality.

I find what I expect to find. I expect to find opportunities related to wealth. My eyes and mind are open to the possibilities around me. Wealth regularly comes to me in unexpected ways.

Today, I look for unique opportunities to increase my wealth and abundance. My mind is open. I am in a receptive state. I am confident that some form of wealth is coming to me today.

Self-Reflection Questions:

1. When did I last receive a financial windfall?
2. What opportunities am I ignoring, overlooking, or failing to take advantage of in my life?
3. What do I believe is my best opportunity to increase my wealth? Am I acting upon it?
