

7-DAY
JOURNALING WORKBOOK

The page features a white background with red torn paper edges at the top-left and bottom-right corners. A red scribble is located in the upper right quadrant.

What does success look like to you?

What steps are you taking to achieve that success? If you haven't already, consider journaling as a tool to help you achieve the success you're reaching for.

Journaling is a self-help tool frequently championed by mental health professionals.

When you journal, you get your thoughts, feelings, and goals onto paper.

The background of the page is a white surface with red paper-like shapes torn at the top-left and bottom-right corners, creating a layered, textured effect. The main text is centered in the white space.

Physically writing down your thoughts helps you clarify what you want.

It also helps you to uplift your mood, keep track of your success, practice positive self-talk, and work through ways to manage your emotions.

Follow these tips to build a daily
journaling habit...

1. Start with two minutes.

If you're having trouble setting aside time to journal, start with two minutes. Pull out your notebook and write for two minutes. If, after two minutes, you feel inspired to keep writing, then keep writing.

2. Build up over time.

Over time, set aside more time (at least 5-10 minutes) for your daily journal practice. This way, you give yourself time to answer the journal prompts thoughtfully and work towards your success.

3. Set aside a regular time to journal.

Whether you journal in the morning or evening is less important. What's more important is to set aside a consistent period during the day where you commit to pulling out your journal.

4. Practice self-compassion.

It's okay if you forget to journal one day! Forgive yourself if you miss one day of journaling. At the same time, be cognizant that sometimes we avoid the things we need most.

5. Keep your journal with you.

Carry your journal with you so you can easily grab it when you want to write down something.
