A Greatcoat I killed recently had an active sapper AI unit inside his backpack. I noticed that right after the game finished loading, I found myself unable to loot the backpack, so I killed it in a panic and it died. When it did, the entire backpack was animated as if something had frozen its contents, and an alarm about an active AI unit went off. This happened just once on my first try, and I've tried multiple times since without any more incident. I did check that I still have the backpack saved, and it still has the active sapper. A: I've been doing a bit of research on this. It looks like the problem is some invisible station in the game that may be triggering a fov, or just making it so you can't place objects in a room unless it is visible. The invisible fov apparently can move, but can't be moved by you. This is a bit of a serious issue if you were doing something that required you to see what you were doing. (For example, if you were trying to sneak up on someone) Luckily, you can override the invisible fov by using the fov override option in your in-game settings. In case you missed that option before, the default fov is 120 degrees. You can increase it to 180 or 120. If you switch it to 120 degrees, then the invisible fov will be removed. [Practical wisdom]. "I am not having my baby in a hospital anymore. I can say that. He is here with me and I am completely in love," Klum told the magazine. "We are surrounded by family. Even though I am getting older, I will have this baby. I can't wait! I am learning new things about myself and who I am as a woman." In the accompanying interview, Klum talked about the difficulty of staying sane when it comes to being a mom. "With my first child, it was my career as a model that gave me the energy to be a mom," Klum said. "With this one, we did not have that kind of craziness that we had before." Photographs taken from the cover shoot show a happy and radiant Klum, who was dressed in a floral top and leopard print skirt, and her husband are joined by family and friends. While the couple welcomed their daughter next year, Klum did not exclude the possibility that they would have another child in the future, saying, "We will not say never. Maybe the third is a challenge, but I will do my best to make that possible and support him as much as I can." "I still have a lot to learn about being a mom," Klum said. "But my life is amazing and I am so happy to have this baby. I am always learning about myself and parenting and I am feeling more and more blessed. It's wonderful."
