If you are like most astrologers, you will be working with the natal chart at some stage of your career. The natal chart is a snapshot of the stars of your birth at the moment of your birth. A natal chart shows you your place in the cosmic scheme of things as you are now. You can use your natal chart to get a handle on your life, who you are and what you can do now. The astrological natal chart is constructed using the Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, Neptune and Pluto positions according to the Mean or Midheaven at the time of your birth. The chart also gives the Ascendant, Midheaven and Descendant. The thing that strikes most people about a natal chart is the chart's relationship to time. From the birth time to the 'last day of the month' the chart shows where the planets are in the sky at any given moment. The chart is also binary – that is, it is a division into two equal parts. The chart divides the night sky from the day sky, and the chart is scaled as if you are lying on your back in the night sky. Your birth time is typically 11:00 pm, with the Sun at the Ascendant (the top of your birth chart). It is the Sun you see at the top of the sky when you look up at
