NameError Effects of alcohol on short-term memory: a study of abstinent recovering alcoholics. The purpose of this study was to investigate short-term memory and its relationship to the ability to abstain from alcohol in recovering alcoholics. A single blind design was used for data collection.
The subjects were 36 abstinent recovering alcoholics who gave 80 completed baseline ratings on a series of cognitive measures and 90 abstinent inpatient recovered alcoholics who served as a comparison group. Discriminant analysis indicated that 60% of the baseline scores of the group of recovering alcoholics could be predicted as abstainers or social drinkers and 40% of the abstinent alcoholics had not changed their cognitive style as a result of their abstinent status. The findings of this study indicate that abstainers may be successful as alcoholics, even though their cognitive style appears unchanged from that of social drinkers.

Black Holes: A Space Odyssey Black Holes: A Space Odyssey is a scientific documentary TV series covering how black holes were first discovered and how new technology has advanced our understanding of these galactic structures. It was produced by the BBC and the Science & Environment team from the University of Cambridge. It ran for three series, first airing from 20 April to 14 November 1999, followed by four more series between 23 September 2002 and 10 December 2004. Production Each series has featured two programmes: an In Conversation with the discoverer of a new object, Professor John McCarthy, and a Deepest Planet, featuring a scientist who has helped to develop Genetic analysis of the melatoninergetic system by LOPAC library screening of cell lines. The first large scale screen for agonists and antagonists of the melatoninergetic system was carried out on the human MCF-7 breast cancer cell line.

We tested 544 compounds from the LOPAC Human Chemicals library including nuclear receptor modulators and specific ligands for most known melatonin receptors. Nearly 60% of the tested compounds were active and the distribution of activities was significantly skewed towards antagonists. The most active compounds belonged to the group of the bromocriptine, LY206641, WAY190019, and methoxycarbonyl-2-phenethylamino-N-[3-(4-thiazolyl)propyl]benzenesulfonamide (SC58242), 2-[(2-phenylethyl)amino]ethanol, and scutellarin derivatives.
