BEST TIME TO VISIT

The best time to visit Lisbon is whenever you can get here!

Lisbon is a popular summer destination, so if you want to take advantage of a few warm days to explore the beach but still avoid some crowds and peak rates, try to come between March and May or September to October.

GETTING AROUND LISBON

Click here to be taken to our post on how to use public transportation in Lisbon

Public transportation in Lisbon is quite handy, and even if you don't think you'll need it, chances are that when you see the daunting hills of this city you might change your mind.

The Trams of Lisbon are well known for providing the best routes for sightseeing, most notably Tram 28E. If you're just trying to avoid the steepest hills, funiculars may be your best bet. There are 3 funiculars in Lisbon, and they are designed specifically to ascend the most difficult hills in the city.

In addition to these options, you may also want to consider the metro. However, unlike in other cities, the metro in Lisbon isn't quite as good for tourists as it is for locals. There are also hundreds of bus lines you can use, but with so many different routes to go through, you might want to use an app like Google Maps to navigate your trip.

It's worth keeping in mind that both the bus and metro make stops at the airport, which means you can use either of them as an affordable transfer to the city centre.

WHICH LISBON FOODS TO TRY

Trying local foods is a must-do experience in a new place, but Lisbon food may be new to you. Here are some things to keep an eye out for.

PASTEL DE NATA

A historic sweet pastry which is very simple but a classic dessert.

BIFANA

This simple sandwich is pork stewed in white wine on a hearty white bread.

CALDO VERDE

A kale and sausage soup, this is basically the national dish of Portugal.

SEAFOOD

Whether it's shellfish or Bacalhau (salt cod), you should get some seafood while you're here!
